FEDERAL ACE TAKES HAND IN COAL PARLEY

Dr. Steelman, Conciliation Chief, Joins Committee Studying Contract.

WEDNESDAY'S DEADLINE

Southern Miners, Operators Still Fail To Agree on Extension Terms.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — Dr. John R Steelman, director of the United States conciliation service, joined the negotiating sub-committee attempting to reach a temporary contract extension agreement for the Southern Appalachian coal region today. He was accompanied by John D. King, commissioner of the service

Steelman would make no comment before entering the conference, but his presence indicated that the federal government for the first time was taking a direct hand in the negotiations which must arrive at a temporary agreement before the present contract expires at midnight Wednesday.

The southern miners and operators have not so far extended the present contract while they bargain on the miners' demand for a $2 a day wage increase, although northern operators and miners have agreed on a 30-day extension

John L Lewis, UMWA head, has threatened that the miners would not "trespass" on the coal operators' property beginning Thursday if an agreement is not reached or the present contract extended by that time

The miners and southern operators reached an agreement Saturday for a 30-day extension of the present contract and retroactive application of any later wage adjustments, but failed to adopt it because they disagreed as to how the resolution should be worded.

Operators in the northern Appalachian range, who signed an agreement with their workers last week extending the present contract for one month, considered figures submitted by the union tending to show cost-of-living increases in mining communities

The union based its demand for a wage increase on the figures, which have been termed by the operators as, "grossly exaggerated."

Montreal Rail Workers Strike, Tie Up Transportation.

MONTREAL —(U.P.)— The transportation system of this city which is Canada's largest war center, was tied up today by a strike of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes, a CIO affiliate.

The tramways provide the only means of transportation in the city, and the tie-up, virtually complete, kept thousands of war workers from their jobs and thousands of children from school.

The union voted to strike when a deadline passed without the company having answered an ultimatum demanding the company withdraw permission for a workers' negotiating committee to conduct a referendum on company property today.

Windy City Contributes 40 Million For Another Cruiser.

CHICAGO — (AP) — The city, counting the war bonds its citizens had bought in a whirlwind million-dollar-a-day drive to replace the sunken cruiser Chicago, was confident today it had topped the $40,000,000 goal.

Oscar G. Mayer, campaign chairman, predicted final returns from the drive which ended at midnight last night, would show a "comfortable margin" over the goal. By Saturday noon Chicagoans had purchased $39,553,458 worth of Series E. bonds.

Here are two pictures of the fighting in Tunisia that led up to the victory of the British Eighth army over Marshal Rommel's Africa Corps at the Mareth line yesterday. At top, a British soldier searches a German paratrooper captured during skirmishing near Sejenane, while his buddies stand by with itchy trigger fingers. At bottom, British grenadiers supported by Bren-gun carriers, cover a mountain slope during the reconnaissance which followed an encounter with Axis forces as they thrust toward the outskirts of Chala.

Fire Hits Shelby Store, Aid From Mansfield Fails

Mansfield fire fighting apparatus was prevented by a breakdown from reaching Shelby this morning when flames which gutted the Isaly Dairy company store then threatened to spread to other business buildings.

Firemen Thomas Gregg and Ervin Remy were compelled to turn back from Springmill street when a clogged carburetor shut off motor power of the new La France pumper which had been dispatched to Shelby after Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff had relayed a call for help from Shelby officials to Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger.

Isaly company officials estimate the loss in thousands of dollars, with smoke damage reported from second floor apartments and the Red Cross Drive Goes Over Top With $60,173 Reported

Reporting $60,173 in collections to date, Richland County Red Cross War Fund drive officials today announced that they had reached and passed their $59,000 goal.

Through the efforts of the city and county workers the drive, which opened here March 1 has reached the finish line ahead of the national drive which will continue through April 1. Some donations are yet to come in and contributions will be received through the remainder of the month, officials said.

Figures from the house-to-house workers, the small businesses and large industries are included in today's figures. Collections from the township and Shelby workers are also nearly complete.

Drive workers all over the county have reported great success in the collection of contributions. Most of the townships have doubled their quotas, giving many times more than in former years One township where last year $1 was the total contribution gave $125 to the 1943 drive.

Shelby workers have turned into the drive a sum more than $1,000 over the quota which they were given The War Fund drive office located in the Farmers Bank building has been closed and future donations will be received at the Red Cross office on Fourth street.

REVEALS GIFT

Husband of Slain Woman Offers Posible Murder Clue.

TULSA, Okla —(U.P.)— The county attorney began an investigation today to determine why T. K. Simmons, millionaire oil man, gave $20,000 to Mrs. Ella B. Howard, 44, Fort Worth, Tex., divorcee who is held for the murder of Simmons' wife.

Mrs. Simmons, 55, one of the nation's most prominent horse fanciers, was shot and killed last Thursday night in Mrs. Howard's room in a fashionable hotel.

Simmons yesterday signed a statement admitting that he gave $20,000 to Mrs Howard last summer. He did not disclose, however, whether he gave her the money voluntarily or under duress.

County One Of 31 Collecting Ditch Fees Now Up For Repeal

Another effort to abolish fees which Ohio county commissioners receive for inspecting drainage ditches will be made tonight in the Ohio assembly in Columbus

Richland county commissioners, who in the state salary increase bill of 1937 had their yearly pay raised from $1,600 to $2,800, are one of the 31 groups of commissioners out of 88 counties of the state who continue to collect $20 each for each ditch approved and finished. They collect nothing for those inspected which are not approved and for which contracts are not let.

According to Lorain county representatives, who sponsor the bill, and whose commissioner, Oscar Dunn, takes credit for have instigated the salary advance legislation, the commissioners' association agreed to abolish such fees after the increase, but killed the bill two years later when the abolition legislation was proposed.

Richland county commissioners, however, say that to their knowledge the association never agreed to take the action but that when it was proposed by Dunn, it was defeated. Likewise, they maintain credit for the salary increase bill belongs to Thomas Allen, Edward Cantwell and Frank Cave.

Doubtful as to legality of collecting the fees after the salary increase was voted, the Richland county body asked the prosecutor's opinion as to law in the

SLOW BUSINESS STARTS MEAT RATIONS TODAY

Consumers' Well-Filled Larders Keep Demands on Limited Supply at Minimum.

MORE STOCKS DUE SOON

Demand Light For Butter After Week's 'Freeze'; Most Cities Suffer Shortage.

Scattered buying of limited supplies ushered in rationing of meat, butter, and cheese in Mansfield today.

Last week's stampede toward the meat counters was responsible for "slow business" reports from the retailers. They pointed out most consumers had supplies on hand from the pre-rationing buying orgy which also nearly exhausted supplies of popular cuts.

Although the freezing order on butter was lifted today with the beginning of rationing, the majority of retailers said the demand was not as brisk as they first expected

Additional meat stocks are expected by most retailers this afternoon and it was anticipated that by Thursday there will be a near-normal supply on hand.

Red coupons marked "A" in Ration Book No. 2 will allow the customer to have a choice of beef, veal, pork, lamb, mutton, hard cheeses, butter, margarine, shortening, edible oils and canned or glassed fish and meat. In addition a score of food frozen since February 18 along with butter and fats will be on the market for sale.

The meat situation in Mansfield was no different than that in most cities in Ohio and throughout the nation.

In Cleveland two of the city's largest markets were closed and others reported only a few pork products available after an unprecedented stampede Saturday.

Frank C. Jeroski, Cleveland market commissioner, said all three of the largest markets were sold out Saturday and added: "There isn't a scrap of beef left in any of the markets Only pigs feet some fat bacon spare ribs, hearts, and cold cuts are to be had

Many independent butcher shops in Cleveland indicated their stocks were depleted, but chain grocery store officials said they had sup-

Martin Predicts House Passage of Ruml Tax Measure.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The house Republican steering committee met today to tighten party lines behind the Ruml tax plan, and Rep Martin of Massachusetts the minority leader, reported "I now feel certain" the proposal to skip an income tax year will pass the house.

The commitee meeting was held in Martin's office with a view to planning strategy when voting begins, probably tomorrow, on various pay-as-you-go income tax proposals.

Meanwhile, the Democratic leaders continued their running battle against the plan originally advanced by Beardsley Ruml of the New York Federal Reserve bank and embraced in modified form a bill by Rep. Carlson (R., Kas.); and various plans for a compromise that would abate a large part, but not all of one tax year, were in the air.

SCOUR NORTH PACIFIC FOR JAP WARSHIPS

American Naval, Air Forces Guard Against Return of Once-Routed Fleet.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — American naval and air forces in the Aleutians were alert today for the possible return of a Japanese force of four cruisers and four destroyers escorting two cargo vessels which has been driven away once

A light detachment of American warships dueled last Friday at long range with the enemy force west of Attu island, westernmost of the Aleutians It was the first all-surface engagement of the north Pacific.

There were no details of the battle, but a naval spokesman said that the Japanese refused to slug it out. He declined to speculate on the reason.

(A Japanese communique broadcast by radio Tokyo today was presumed to give the enemy version of the action It claimed that Japanese planes had damaged two American cruisers and a destroyer in the Aleutians and forced them into "flight eastward." The communique made no mention of Japanese surface forces.)

Except to reveal that the enemy reversed course and headed westward after breaking off the engagement, the navy's communique said only:

"Announcement of further details will be made when such information will not be of value to the enemy."

That could be interpreted as meaning that the American forces suffered some damage or perhaps that the American vessels are pursuing the enemy and do not wish that fact known.

The presence of an American surface patrol so far to the west in the Pacific suggested that efforts are being made to cut the enemy's difficult supply line to Kiska, a foehold the Japanese have held in the Aleutians since last

Blames Home Life In Arrest Of Girl For Purse Theft

Mansfield's recent increase in juvenile thievery brought a suggestion for a more thorough investigation of parental guidance after a 12-year-old girl confessed to Police Chief Meade K Bates yesterday that she had stolen a woman's purse at the Colony bowling alleys Saturday and indulged in a shopping spree.

"It is suggested that the home life of this girl be checked more thoroughly by juvenile court authorities as there is evidence of very little parental supervision," the record drafted by Chief Bates noted. The girl recently was turned over to probate court jurisdiction after she and a girl companion had been apprehended for shop-lifting.

Mrs. Elizabeth Beach, 207 Park boulevard, told Patrolman Earl Korn that someone had taken her purse from a chair while she was bowling early Saturday afternoon.

'Little Maginot' Defenses Cracked Along 25-Mile Front By British; Allied Planes Join Infantry In Strafing Fleeing Enemy.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Mareth line defenses have collapsed under the pounding of the British Eighth army and his forces are retreating northward with heavy losses, it was announced today.

Scattered pockets of resistance were left behind, but Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's infantrymen were reported mopping them up, one by one, as Allied aerial squadrons joined ground forces in powerful attacks along the Axis escape corridor.

The Mareth line broke on a 25-mile front at three points, ranging from 20 to 30 miles from the Axis supply port of Gabes.

Beset by powerful forces forward and the desert flanking column at El Hamma in his rear, Rommel yielded Mareth, Matmata and Toujane at the northern end of the Mareth fortifications yesterday and dispatches said every strong point of that 40-mile-long little Maginot line was in Allied hands.

They were wrested from the enemy in some of the fiercest combats of the war—combats in which more than 6,000 German and Italian soldiers were captured. Thousands of tons of bombs had been loosed upon the line by day and by night to supplement continual heavy artillery barrages

Dispatches from Cairo said it was announced officially Axis air fields protecting Gabes were being plowed up, which would be a sure sign Rommel intended to abandon that area to the Allies.

(Since air protection would be necessary for a Dunkerque escape by Rommel's army through Gabes, any further withdrawal probably would mean he intended to attempt a fighting retreat for 200 miles or more up the coast to a junction with the command of Col. Gen Jurgen von Arnim in the Tunis-Bizerte region.)

Threatening his escape corridor for a stretch of 100 miles were the United States troops of Lieut. Gen. George S Patton, jr., pushing toward the coast from newly captured Fondouk, Maknassy and El Guetar.

"The attack which was launched on the afternoon of March 26 on the enemy's strong position south of El Hamma has forced the enemy to withdraw from the Mareth area," the communique said in opening its account of the victory

The southern front developments were coupled with Allied gains both at the center and in the north.

United States troops made progress yesterday through difficult country east of El Guetar in one movement of the push toward the Axis escape corridor across the Gabes plain

"In the Maknassy and Fondouk areas (to the north) our patrols were very active," the communique announced.

"In the north in the Djebel Ahiod area (some 50 miles southwest of Bizerte) local advances were made and a considerable number of prisoners were taken."

Falling back toward the area of Gabes 20 miles northwest of the village of Mareth, Rommel's troops were bombed and shot up in smashing attacks by Allied air forces.

The collapse came on the ninth day of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's offensive against the mountainous Mareth line positions. It was the same time that Montgomery's men, artillery and bombers needed to break through Rommel's first line at El Alamein, 1,500 miles farther east

Reports from the battlefront said Rommel was pulling back in an apparent last minute effort to avoid the trap set by British and United States troops in his rear from El Hamma, El Guetar, Maknassy and Fondouk.

The communique reported that more than 6,000 Axis soldiers had been captured since the opening gun of the Mareth line offensive was fired March 20.

The attack upon El Hamma,

Berlin Left In Flames, RAF Looses Fury On Sub Base.

BULLETIN

STOCKHOLM—(U.P.)—The Berlin correspondent of Allehanda today quoted the German military spokesman as saying that 18 British planes had been shot down off Norway, during what appeared to be a big raid somewhere in Norway.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—RAF bombers resumed their assaults on German submarine bases last night, after the greatest raid of the war on Berlin Saturday night, by blasting the base at St. Nazaire with a "concentrated attack," the air ministry announced today.

Two bombers did not return from the St. Nazaire raid, which was carried out in considerable strength and added new damage to a U-boat haven which has been attacked often and heavily in the past.

Squadrons of bombers, escorted by fighters, crossed and recrossed the southeast coast this morning, hinting at a continuation of the intensive blows directed at Germany and her satellites on the continent during the week-end.

The German radio meanwhile announced that German bombers retaliating for the Saturday night RAF raid on Berlin and a daylight raid yesterday by American Fortresses and Liberators on the railroad yards at Rouen, France, smashed at Norwich, England, during the night.

Hit and run German raiders appeared over the south coast this morning and made a direct hit on a school clinic in a coast town.

Rescue workers began digging in the wreckage for members of the staff and any pupils who might have been trapped there.

Authorities said two enemy aircraft were destroyed during the night raids on Britain.

The great load of almost 900

Serve Fish And Spinach In Day's Menu

By BETSY NEWMAN

If your adults won't drink milk or your milk ration won't serve all the family, giving the grown-ups their daily pint, make a main dish of creamed fish.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, March 30.

Judging by the lunar transits of this day there may be sudden and quite unplanned for events and adventures Travel, novel ventures, probably romance, hold dramatic appeal, and this in spite of petty delays or setbacks

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of dramatic and thrilling events This may instigate new interests in association with curious, strange or secretive partners, in which the subtle and intriguing involve tacit and undercover agreements. It will be safe to be guided by intuition, inspiration, or "hunches," as inner faculties are stimulated

A child born on this day should be possessed of exceptional talents and ingenuity, with creative ability in the arts or sciences.

Caring for Your Child Neighbors

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Until the community provides adequate care for the child of the working mother what may nonworking wives and mothers do to help? They can help create community sentiment for such measures They can help establish smaller centers in their clubs and churches to care for some of these children.

Furthermore, the mother, or wife without children, who does not work away from home, can make her own home a center for one or more children nearby whose mothers work Over all the United States, on the farm, in hamlets, towns and cities are scattered mothers who are working Suppose you lived near one of these mothers. Suppose you told her you would be glad to keep her tot during the day or to have her child of school age stay at your house before and after school when she must be away Could you render a more patriotic service?

Creative Fun.

To the tot left with you, you might read often and guide him in creative fun with blocks and other playthings such as crayons, even with tools, scissors, saw and hammer. Or an older child of yours might help out. Then see the good you could render this little child.

Of course, you would need to have an understanding with the mother that the child of any age while in your care would be subject to your control; yet you would try to use as little force as necessary to this end.

Care of School-Age Child.

The school-age child in your care might profitably read some, listen some to the radio, engage in constructive amusement with tools with one or two neighbor children or play some non-running games Some of these children in your care might be willing to help you about the house. All the better if the child you care for is of about the same age as a child of yours. It would be good education for him and for your child.

Unless you and your neighbors take some of these children of working mothers in and befriend them, they might soon become nuisances in the neighborhood. This services then might well prove a protection to you, your children and the whole community.

During peace or war, we make our neighborhood safer for our own children as we help tame and guide in wise ways the neglected children about us How much better to try to build such children into good citizens than to ignore or ostracize them and let them grow up as pests, even as juvenile delinquents menacing us and our children.

A selected list of books from which to read to the tot may be had by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q What would you consider a good time for my children 8 and 10 to come into the house and go to bed during school days?

A. They should make a beeline for the house each night when the street lights appear. When they should go to bed would depend much on the family program. They need about 11 hours of actual sleep. It might be well to allow the older to go to bed 15 minutes later than the younger, being "so much older." My chart showing desirable hours of sleep at the various ages may be had in the usual way.

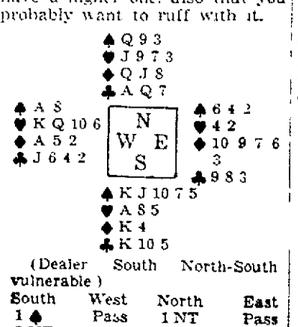
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE THREE-TRUMP ECHO

Adroit use of the "three-trump echo" by the defense can frequently produce the setting trick or tricks where otherwise unattainable This signal, introduced in the days of auction bridge by the veteran Sidney S. Lenz, one of the greatest players of the cards the world will ever see, if not the greatest, enables you to tell your partner when you hold three trumps against the declarer, by giving a high-low with first your middle one, then your lowest That lets him know you have a higher one, also that you probably want to ruff with it.



(Dealer South North-South vulnerable)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

North's belated raise of spades, indicating only three cards of the suit, was the clue to the defenders which indicated that South had either a five-card or a six-card suit, as with only four trumps, he should have bid 3-No Trumps instead.

West opened the defense with his heart K, which the A took When South then led his spade K, West ducked in order to give East a chance to reveal his desires with a second play on trumps. That simple move paid big dividends as East played the 4 on that first spade lead and the 2 on the next one, which the A took Noting his partner's high-low, West knew East had another trump and wanted to ruff with it So West cashed his heart Q and then led the 6, which East trumped with his spade 6. The diamond return to the A beat the contract.

Notice that West had no way to know that East's 4 on the first trick was the start of a high-low It might have been the bottom of three. If that was the case, play of the heart Q, when West was in again, could have been helpful to declarer by setting up the J. But the high-low of East in trumps made the proper course of West easy.

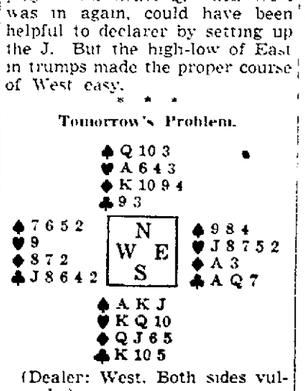
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

What is South's soundest action here after East opens with 1-Heart?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Oh, I am so sorry Olga exclaimed, then added 'But of course we knew this reunion must end sometime So Georges dear boy, I suppose all I can do is to give you my blessing and wish you God speed'

Georges had risen from his place beside Olina when my father spoke. Now he raised Olga's hand to his lips with a gesture which must have brought her memories of the many times he had kissed her hand when she reigned as queen of Transvania and he was the boyish prince of Trees, come to woo her young daughter because of a royal mandate

"All you can do!" he repeated protestingly 'With your blessing and God speed dear liege lady, I am armed against any fate"

'Always the perfect courtier Georges' Olga told him 'Remember, as soon as this awful nightmare is over you must come to us as our guest We cannot have you roaming around without a home when ours is waiting and eager to welcome you"

'That knowledge" he said quickly, "would hearten any imprisonment, even if it were harsh and involuntary, instead of the pleasant sanctuary Mr. Spencer offers me"

"It will be comfortable, Georges certainly," my father said, "but I cannot guarantee that it will be pleasant, for we shall have to keep you incommunicado until we have found the final answer to this unholy mess in which we are all involved. And now, as soon as you can get through with your goodbyes, we will be going I will go out first to make sure that Collins, the elevator man and some others are on the job I told them to be ready at this hour so I will be right back

He gave a glance at his wrist watch, and I knew that he must have planned the timing of every move of his subordinates also that there must be no delay

Mary Keeps on Acting.

And now we all crowded around Georges with good-byes and good wishes.

'Remember, fellah" Dicky was saying, 'the minute the Chief gives the word, we'll come down with a chariot and drive you up Broadway, with ticker tape salutes

Philip Veritzen, Noel and I bade him good-bye more sedately, but Mary, still keeping up her role took his outstretched hand in both hers with an extravagant gesture

'The rotten luck I have!' she exclaimed Now Allah alone knows when I'll have a chance to ask you those questions But don't be surprised to see me any time at the hideaway. I'll try to crawl through the cracks somehow. Good bye, Beautiful! Don't forget me when you say your prayers"

'I won't" though a banal answer was all Georges could manage I don't think he ever was so near being socially at a loss.

Then Mary turned back to the rest of us and as if by common consent, Georges was left alone with Olina for his last farewell For Olga moved away and we all went with her.

What Georges and Olina said to each other we could not tell, of course but the manner of both invested the scene with an aura of romance all too soon dissipated by my father's return

Philip admitted him, and my father with a look at Georges ran abruptly.

One minute longer Georges sorry no more" Then he turned to me

Margaret, may I speak to you a moment?' he asked

Then, knowing him, she had came to realize how ashamed he must have been. He had always hated awkwardness and failure. He had always hated being obvious. Pity he could not tolerate.

One day she, too, had been ashamed. A maid in the hospital had stopped her abruptly in the corridor and asked, "Ain't you the girl whose husband's wife is gona marry Rand Andrews? Gee! Jes' think . . . marryin' him!"

Once more Bill had hurt her by drawing her into the limelight and making her conspicuous and talked-about. Was there no end to the humiliation of a divorce?

Freda, sensing her distress, had said, "You'll be out of it soon, darling. You'll be out west where, let's hope, the wind is so strong it blows the scandal away. I've never been west, but I've always had nice ideas about it. Fields waving of grain, purple mountains, the fade-out of lovers on horseback . . . I went for western serials in my childhood and I had a better western lingo than the most bow-legged cowboy in Montana."

Since her divorce Carol had called on Bill's mother at least once a month. Always she had sat in the over-crowded, old-fashioned living room where Mrs. Sturtevant poured forth her family and church news. Always, too, she had a cup of tea and a rich cake topped by thick chocolate icing.

Her last visit she had dreaded. Once more Bill's mother was in tears over the son of whom she had been most proud. "It's that woman . . . the trouble she's brought on Bill and you and me!"

Bill's mother had never wholeheartedly blamed her child. But not once did she say where Bill was or what he was doing. If she knew his whereabouts—and Carol did not believe that he was heartless enough to keep them from her—she did not say and Carol did not question. When Carol left, Mrs. Sturtevant's watery eyes were looking hopeful. "Now that this has happened, maybe you and Bill—" But Carol had stopped her with "I'm afraid it's too late for that now."

Freda shook her dark head nervously, in the light pouring softly from the living room her eyes were big and dark and amused.

"If someone doesn't say something soon, I'm going to start wishing on the stars."

Ian chuckled. "Aloud, let's have it. It should be good."

"All right then. A mink coat."

"I think I'll mix us a drink, darling," Ian said. His lean brown face, topped by close-cropped gray hair, broke into a grin.

Freda laughed. "A mink coat . . . that reminds me. The other day I heard a girl say that she was going to take all of her savings and buy a mink coat so that, while we were all refugees on the road, she in a mink coat would at least be picked up. That isn't funny, really. But it is indicative of some very odd reasoning going on in certain heads . . . No, Ian. Don't fix us a drink. Not yet. Don't disturb the sylvan scene by the rattling of ice cubes and calling out, 'Where is the bottle opener, Freda?' "

"Where is it? It's never in the same place twice." He smiled at Carol with affection. "Honey, don't let your romance disintegrate to the point where on a romantic night you talk about bottle openers."

Carol laughed. "But, Ian, a misplaced opener is indicative of poor housekeeping, and Freda prides herself on being a good housekeeper. It would be the same if you had accused her of having a poor dinner tonight."

"How can I win against two women?"

"My pal," Freda said. "You tell him!"

Ian took his wife's small, restless hand. "It was a wonderful dinner, darling. Four vegetables!"

Their good-natured baiting, Carol thought, and their ability to laugh at themselves and each other were further proofs of their civilized living.

Then the bright headlights of an oncoming car that had just turned in the road fell upon her, revealing the pensiveness of her face, and the slim princess lines of her white silk frock. Then the lights swung away from her as the car curved and stopped. The lights went out.

"Are we expecting anyone?" Freda asked excitedly.

"Are we?" Ian asked with a chuckle. "I'll see."

He got up slowly and disappeared in the darkness. Freda did not say anything. Carol heard voices rather distant at first and then coming nearer . . . Ian's voice and . . . No! . . . Yes! Bill's voice, deep, boyish, familiar.

Only in the soft light pouring from the living-room onto the terrace did they see each other.

"Well!" Freda cried. "Look who's here! Hi, Bill!"

Ian had his hand on Bill's shoulder.

Carol looked up. Bill . . . as tall as ever, as loose-jointed as ever, as tanned as he always was after a summer of golf, as immaculate as ever in dark trousers and a white coat, wearing the wrist watch she had given him, wearing a blue tie . . . Only in the becoming gray of his temples had he changed.

"Hello, Carol . . ." The familiar voice quavered just a little. He would clear his throat, she thought. He always did that when he wasn't sure of himself.

Our John lost his Inter-City singles championship yesterday noon. That's John Lockstead, the Marion kegler, who, with a 155 average smashed out a 727 singles score for an all-time tournament record at Lorain a year ago.

John did all right yesterday for the 168 average he's carrying this season, turning in a 596 total on games of 201-182-213, after rolling a sad 432 in doubles.

Now 596 is very fair sort of country kegling, but it's a long cry from 727.

Just last Friday, Art Hilborn not only wanted to bet that the defending singles champion wouldn't make the board, but even offered to wager as much as ten bucks that Lockstead wouldn't hit one 200 in his nine tournament games, if anybody cared to give him 2 to 1.

That was a good bet to take, I find out now. Lockstead got three 200's, one in his five-man event.

Why didn't I take that bet? This is why, Art knew what he was talking about, and I didn't.

"I saw Lockstead roll that 727 last year at Lorain," laughed Hilborn, "boy, was he hot? As hot as the smoking pipe he held in his teeth.

"He'd just run up to the foul line, let his ball go, and walk back to the bench, never waiting to see what happened. Half the time I don't think he saw the ball hit the pins.

"But it was in there, and down would go the wood.

"Somebody told him in his last game that he had a chance to get up among the leaders. 'If I get 'em, I get 'em, and if I don't I don't. What's the difference?' he retorted."

Art and his Bissman Birdie Brand keglers will be interested in the following paragraph lifted verbatim from the Tiffin Advertiser-Tribune, in a story on the men's handicap tournament now in progress in Tiffin.

"The Bessman's Birdie Brand five of Mansfield, top the competing teams for high total averages. The crack Mansfield keglers sport a 949 team average, Art Hilborn with 195 and Dale Kleckner, with 194 are the two top stars on this aggregation. The team also has Johnny Weppo with an 188 average, Phil Waiga, 187, and Winnie Kleckner with 185. The Bessman's bowl here Sunday afternoon, April 4."

Johnny Weppo wolls so funny wiv his teef out, don't you think so?

Buck Tankers Try For Slam

Collegiate Champs Enter A. A. U. Event.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — With the Western conference and NCAA swim championships safely tucked away, Ohio State university's talent-laden tank team looked forward today to making it a grand slam in the national A. A. U. classic in New York this week-end.

Coach Mike Peppe's performers won "going away" in the national collegiates Saturday, capturing five individual championships and piling up a team total of 81 points against 47 for second-place Michigan.

Michigan is the only university ever to annex the Big Ten, NCAA and AAU championships in a single campaign, the Wolverines turning the trick in 1940.

Ohio boasts the only double-winners in the national collegiates, Frank Dempsey taking the one and three-meter diving titles for the second straight year and Keo Nakama, Hawaiian flash, winning the 440-yard and 1500-meter freestyles. Bill Smith another Hawaiian who holds all the freestyle records from 100 yards to the mile, gave Ohio its fifth title by taking the 220-yard event.

Wildcats Prove Real Champs

Show Professional Poise And Finesse.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—There was joy in Newark and Yorkville today but there was no joy in six other Ohio cities. Their high school basketball teams were defeated in the state high school basketball tournament at Columbus.

Both state title winners—Newark in Class A and Yorkville in Class B—definitely proved their superiority and both can boast of having the best high school teams in Buckeye basketball land.

Newark's Wildcats, coached by Max Douglas, who was promoted to the high school job from a junior high mentorship only this year, had special reason to be proud. Faced by Forward Fred Shaus, Newark eliminated previouslyy undefeated Martins Ferry in the afternoon semi-finals by a 44 to 36 score, and downed hapless Canton McKinley in the finals by a 47 to 42 count.

And but for the work of Capt. Bill Young of Ferry's Purple Riders and Dale Haverstock of McKinley's Bulldogs, Newark's finesse and almost professional-like poise would have been more evident in the final scores.

Young, playing a superb floor game and dropping in a few long shots to boot, might have led the Fernans to a win over the state champs if his teammates had had that difference between a near-miss and two points.

Haverstock, who was off his game against Lime Central in the semi finals, gave a superb shooting exhibition against Newark, getting 23 points. If Ernie Parks, McKinley's negro center, had played up to his afternoon game, the Bulldogs might have made it in their 12th trip to the state tourney—their fourth to the final game.

But Newark definitely was a championship team Saturday and would have made several title holders of previous years look bad if they could have been the Wildcats' opponents. When Shaus wasn't hitting 'em from close in, someone else was.

Paul Jackson, the other Newark forward, was the speediest thing in the finals although he was the only Wildcat regular to fail to make the all-tourney first and second team. Center Kenton Campbell proved his superiority by easily outplaying his two opponents at that position.

Roger Sedgwick and Jack Bickel, Newark guards, showed their dexterity in starting Newark's scoring plays and both would come though frequently with brilliant shots just when it looked as if the Cats had lost their sting.

In only one quarter of the two games did Newark look bad and that can probably be attributed to cage knowledge of Foxie" Floyd Baker, coach of Ferry. Behind 3 to 22 at the intermission, the Purple Riders came back with instructions from Baker on how to stop Newark and did just that for one quarter and part of the final frame.

In the third period, the state champs were able to score only twice, both times from the foul line and never from the field. Ferry, however, just missed several shots and consequently scored only eight points. In the final quarter, the Riders got too anxious and obviously overpressed their shots.

Yorkville, a town only two or three miles from Martins Ferry, however, came through where the Purple Riders failed. Undefeated Middle Point, previous winners of 26 straight, was the Yorks biggest problem. However, the Ducktitutes downed the undefeated Middle Point five in the semi-finals, 44 to 39, in a ding dong game from start to finish.

In the Class B finals, the Yorks went all-out, scoring a 54 to 30 victory over Tipp City. The score at the end of the first quarter was only 10 to 7 in favor of the State B champs but from there on, there was no doubt of the final outcome. Yorkville led 28 to 10 at the half and 42 to 17 at the third-quarter gun.

Tipp City gained the Class B finals by edging Waynesburg, 34 to 31 while Canton McKinley got to the final game by downing a fast Lima Central five, 41 to 10.

Rockets Battle For Tourney Title

NEW YORK — (AP) — Second-seeded St John's of Brooklyn and fourth-ranked Toledo of Ohio meet in Madison Square Garden tonight in the finale of the national invitation tournament—first of three games that will bring down the curtain on the 1942-43 college basketball season.

The National Collegaite Athletic association championship will be decide dtomorrow night when Wyoming's band of Huskies, Rocky Mountain titleholders, carries the hope of the west against Georgetown's Hoyas, champions of the east.

On Thursday night, the invitation titleholder and the N.C.A.A. winner will meet in a contest that will benefit the Red Cross and at the same time provide the hardwood-harriers with their closest approach to a national champion in years.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Reporting on the basketball season at the Jacksonville, Fla., naval air technical training center, Yeoman Carolus G. INDIANAPOLIS PLAYS BUFFALO IN FINALS

(By Associated Press)

It is Indianapolis vs. Buffalo in the best of five series for the Calder Cup in the American hockey league's playoffs and the fireworks are scheduled to get under way on Wednesday on Bison ice.

Buffalo filled the final round brackets last night by defeating Hershey, easy winner of the league pennant, 2 to 1.

Indianapolis, winner of the cup a year ago, clinched its position Saturday night by turning back Cleveland, 3 to 2.

OLD BOXER DIES

DETROIT—(AP)—Jack Kinnane, 68, Detroit's "grand old man" of boxing, died Sunday. In 1891 he defeated Stonewall Jackson in 37 rounds in the ballroom of a Brooklyn hotel.

Edwards Stars As Tribe Wins

Hank Clouts Homer, Triple and Single.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians returned to their regular training routine today after winning their first exhibition game of the spring season.

Although they didn't exactly cover themselves with glory, the Tribesmen manufactured a 12 to 3 victory over the semi-pro Lafayette Red Sox yesterday.

While their own pitchers held the Red Sox to two hits, the Indians hammered the semi-pro hurlers for 12, including home runs by Frank Edwards and Russ Peters.

That Lafayette was able to make three runs on two hits was due to a blowup by the Cleveland infield in the first inning when First Baseman Otto Denning and Third Sacker Ken Keltner made wild throws behind a base on balls.

The pitching was divided three innings apiece by Rookies Mike Naymuck, Calvert and Pete Center.

Outfielder Hank Edwards was the day's batting star with a triple and a single.

Second Baseman Ray Mack was back in camp today after visiting his Cleveland draft board, which reclassified him from 3-A to 1-A. He played the last five innings of yesterday's game.

DETROIT TAKES EDGE IN HOCKEY SERIES

(By United Press)

Detroit's National Hockey league champions rallied for three last-period goals Sunday night to defeat the Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-2 and take a 3 to 2 edge in their best-of-seven Series A Stanley cup playoffs.

The teams go to Toronto for the sixth game Tuesday and return to Detroit Thursday, if necessary, to close the series. Montreal, trailing the Bruins, 3-1 in the Series B set, invades Boston Tuesday in the fifth game and returns home April 1, if necessary.

Ohio State Gridders Open Drills

Indoor Practice Set For First Eight Days.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Uncertain just what players he would have next fall, Ohio State university football coach Paul Brown today put final touches on preparations for the start of spring practice tomorrow.

Indoor practice will be on the menu for the first eight days with two-hour drills being divided equally between lectures and calisthenics. After that the Buckeyes will go outdoors until the end of the spring session May 22 when the annual intrasquad game will be played.

Charles Csuri, captain and tackle of the Buckeyes, expects to be called into service soon but will report for the spring practice.

"Csuri," said Brown, "feels as though it is his team and wants to stay with it as long as he can."

The 1943 Buckeyes may gain the services of Halfback Les Horvath, even though he has exhausted his three years of eligibility. Horvath is in dentistry and should he go into the army or navy, he would still continue his dental education. With the regulations of the Western conference relaxed, he would be eligible to play again.

Under ordinary circumstances, Brown would have had back 39 of 42 members of the 1942 Big Ten championship squad. Instead, he is reasonably certain of having only six: Don Steinberg and Cecil Souders, ends; Jack Dugger, center; Bob Jabbusch, guard; Gordon Appleby, center, and Paul Selby, a blocking back. Bill Willis, Negro tackle who has varicose veins in his legs, may be called for limited service.

Meanwhile, it was announced William (Tippy) Dye, assistant football and basketball coach, will be in charge of the Bucks' baseball team when the diamond candidates report today after a short between-quarters vacation. Dye will substitute for Fritz Mackey, who will assist Brown during the spring football practice. Wayne Wright is to assist Dye.

Ex-Indian New Yankee Hope

BILL ZUBER

By WALTER L. JOHNS
(Central Press Sports Editor.)

If Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees is showing undue exZUBERance at this time of the spring training season, perhaps it's because of the presence of one Bill Zuber on his pitching staff.

Now Bill Zuber hasn't proved to be much of a pitcher, although he's been playing pro baseball, in the minors and majors for the last 10 years. But McCarthy, who has a knack at turning out winning hurlers, expects the big Amana, Ia., flinger to begin to click in grand style this season.

Reports from the Yankee camp at Asbury Park, N. J., have it that the Yank mentor expects Zuber to win "at least 14 games" for the Gothamites to help take up the slack left by the loss of old "Rufus the Red" Ruffing, who won 258 games during his long tenure in the majors with the Red Sox and Yanks and was the ace of the Yank staff for the last 11 years.

If Zuber can win 14 for the Yanks he'd be almost duplicating his complete lifetime major league total of victories. Zuber's six-year record in the majors is 19 wins, 18 losses.

With Washington last year, Zuber enjoyed his best season, winning nine and losing nine, for a seventh-place club.

He hasn't had enough work to keep him in form, but if given a chance as a starter with the Yanks, he may well go on to the baseball fame first set aside for him to claim when he was a winning minor league slabster.

Zuber has spent most of his major league career as a relief hurler.

First brought up by the Cleveland Indians in 1936, the big righthander was used sparingly and finally sent to Milwaukee, where he could be kept busy. Zuber showed he had plenty of stuff, winning 15 games for the Milwaukee team. Back in Cleveland again the next year, he was then sent back to Milwaukee. Buffalo was the next stop and then Cleveland again. This time Zuber stayed for two seasons, being purchased by Washington in April, 1941.

Zuber first broke into baseball with the Cedar Rapids club of the Mississippi Valley league in 1932. His best year was put in at Zanesville in 1936, when he won 17 games against eight losses.

Senators Go For Knucklers

Three New Hurlers Specialize In Pitch.

By JUDSON BAILEY

COLLEGE PARK, Md. —(AP)— The sweep of the knuckle ball pitching fashion through the major leagues has come to a climax in the camp of the Washington Senators, who have no fewer than four members of this strange society ready to baffle American league batters.

There was a time when the American league was recognized as a fast ball pitcher's parade grounds, but the knucklers have been easing into prominence in recent campaigns and one of the originators of the trend was Big Emil (Dutch) Leonard of the Senators.

For this reason it probably is appropriate that Washington should make a bid to become the capital of knuckleball pitching. Besides the veteran Leonard, Manager Ossie Bluege has added Ewald Pyle, Mickey Haefner and Owen Sheetz, all of whom specialized in this disconcerting pitch in the American Association last year, as well as Catcher Angelo Giuliani, one of the few backstops who can hang on to a knuckler.

Leonard, of course, had an insignificant record last year. He broke his ankle early in the season and was out of action till the closing weeks, finally settling for a 2-2 score.

But in his four previous years with the stumbling Senators he won from 12 to 20 games annually to prove the proficiency of a good knuckle ball. Others —Ted Lyons, Johnny Niggeling, Roger Wolfe and Luman Harris in the American league—compiled amazing marks with nothing much in the way of a weapon except a knuckler, but Leonard achieved a reputation for having it controlled better than most.

Haefner and Sheetz were standouts for sixth place Minneapolis last year, winning 17 and 14 games respectively, while Pyle finished with an 8-5 tally at Toledo. All three appear ready for a crack at big billing in the major leagues and one of the important factors in their expected success is that they will have the benefit of tutoring from Leonard.

The big star of the Senators has been acting as a pitching coach in camp here and has been sharing with the trio of rookies all of the secrets of his knuckleball specialty.

Giuliani, who was with Washington once before and then with the Brooklyn Dodgers, caught Haefner and Sheetz in a majority of their games at Minneapolis and also was a receiver for Leonard when he came to the Senators in 1938.

The senators also have last year's regular backstop, Jake Early, a schooled receiver of knucklers after two years of working with Leonard.

The Senators are bound to feel the loss of Sid Huson, their strong armed young righthander of the last two seasons, but Manager Bluege has 11 hurlers on his staff and thus starts out with a working advantage over some of his rivals in the second division.

TIPPY DYE COACHES BUCK DIAMOND SQUAD

COLUMBUS — (AP) — William (Tippy) Dye, an assistant basketball and football coach at Ohio State university and a former three-sport star at the Buckeye institution, takes over temporarily as head baseball coach today.

Indoor Rifle Champs Picked

Aircraft Tool Worker Captures Ohio Title.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A 28-year-old aircraft tool designer of Troy, and a young housewife of Chillicothe whose husband is in the navy, held Ohio's indoor rifle championships today.

George Washburn piled up a 1063 of a possible 1100 score to annex the men's title from a field of more than 200 competing in seven regional tournaments, while the women's crown went to Mrs. Anna Lou Barker who scored 284 of 300.

Mrs. Barker is the only woman ever to win the national junior title in competition with male shooters. She did it two years ago at Camp Perry.

Washburn won the off-hand championship with 191 of 200, and copped the three position any sights event with 296 of 300, two points better than his own national record. In the aggregate race, Forest Lawrence of Canton was second with 1056.

Mrs. Barker won the women's title by a single point, nosing out Mrs. Dorothea Kelly of Akron, only woman ever to win the state crown in open competition.

Other winners included Tewes trophy (30 shots prone)—Loren Allen of Springfield, 300, plus 67 additional 10's three position.

George Lantz Has Eye On Target

George Lantz led the Mansfield Muzzle Loader Rifle club shooters in the 30-yard off-hand matches Saturday with a 72.2 per cent average in six matches, while Al Wagner was second with 55.5 and John Baldinger third with 46.6.

E. Wagner took the string measure off-hand 30-yard match with a string of 3.45 inches in three shots, Cy Hassinger was second with 3.38.

In the 50-yard rest matches Elmer Light was first with a 2.63 string for three shots, Jim Adams was second with 2.72, and Baldinger third with 2.87.

Lantz retained possession of the Navy cup for the next three months, having 12 firsts in the first five matches of each meet. E. Wagner was second with 10.

FINANCIAL REPORT---COUNTY OF RICHLAND

FOR THE YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31, 1942

CERTIFICATE OF THE COUNTY AUDITOR

litor's Office, Richland County
nsfield, Ohio, March 16, 1943
I, Norman L. Wolfe, Auditor of Richland County, Ohio, hereby certify that the following report is correct.

NORMAN L. WOLFE,
Richland County Auditor

rt of Common Pleas, Richland County
nsfield, Ohio, March 16, 1943
I certify that the following report is in compliance with law.

G. E. KALBFLEISCH,
Judge of the Court of Common Pleas

EXPLANATION OF FINANCIAL REPORT NERAL STATISTICS OF RICHLAND COUNTY, OHIO

ulation, 1940—73,740
value 1942 duplicate—103,395,510.00
levy for County purposes—2.5 mills
ded Debt—general purposes—None.

The following remarks and data are submitted for the er understanding of the annual financial report for the ending December 31, 1942.

COUNTY GENERAL FUND

In addition to the expense of operating the Court House and Jail many welfare activities are financed from the County General Fund. These include the Children's Home, County Infirmary, Soldiers' Relief and Burial, care of indigent tubercular cases and indigent crippled children, as well as the maintenance of several hundred persons in various State Institutions for the feeble minded and insane.

Blind relief and aid to dependent children are financed partly from the County General Fund and partly from grants from the State and Federal Governments as shown on this report.

Agricultural extension work, and County and State elections are also financed from the General Fund.

During the year 1942, Richland County operated on the extremely low rate of 2.5 mills per dollar of tax value.

COUNTY DEBT

During the past twelve years Richland County's debt has been steadily reduced from more than a million dollars and has now been entirely paid off.

For the past several years a policy of issuing no bonds without a vote of the people has been followed. If this policy is continued the County should be able to operate during the next few years on its present income and without any increase in tax revenue.

COUNTY ROAD FUNDS

All income for road purposes is now derived from the auto license tax and gas tax and the detail of the expenditures from this fund is easily followed in the report.

New construction of roads and bridges, maintenance and repair of all County highways, weed mowing, snow removal and supervision of the County highway system are paid for out of this fund.

TAX FUNDS

The County acts as a tax assessing, collecting, and distributing agency for the other units of local government; namely, the schools, cities, villages, and townships. Richland County acts in this capacity for thirteen school districts, two cities, seven villages, and eighteen townships. These funds make up the item shown as "Undistributed Tax Funds."

In 1942 the County handled $3,477,553.70 for the various units of local government.

The other items contained in this report are, I believe, self explanatory.

NORMAN L. WOLFE,
Auditor, Richland County

STOCK LEADERS GAIN SLIGHTLY ON EARLY LIST

Easing of Steel Output For Consumer Trade Indicated Following Survey.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks acquired fractional advances in today's early market transactions.

Improved at a fairly active opening were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Standard Oil (N. J.), General Electric and Johns-Manville.

Boardrooms derived some encouragement from the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that indications from Washington that output of certain durable consumer goods might be eased were in line with opinions that steel production this year is likely to mount sharply.

Take Up Safety In Industry at April Meeting

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Prevention of accidents in Ohio's war industries in order to expedite production is to be the keynote of the 14th annual All-Ohio Safety congress and exhibit to be held in Columbus, April 20 to 22, inclusive, it was announced by the Ohio industrial commission.

"At no time in the history of Ohio industry has the necessity for giving serious thought to accident problems been more imperative" said Will T. Blake, chairman of the Industrial commission in a letter which he directed to leaders in industry and workers organizations who are asked to participate in the safety congress.

"With the productive capacity of the nation nearing its peak in an effort to keep the armed forces of the nation and our allies supplied with the sinews of war, industry is faced with many new accident problems, the solution of which will test the ingenuity and stamina of our safety organizations," Chairman Blake's letter states.

Discussions at both general and sectional meetings will deal almost exclusively with the wartime safety problems and methods of keeping safety activities in step with production.

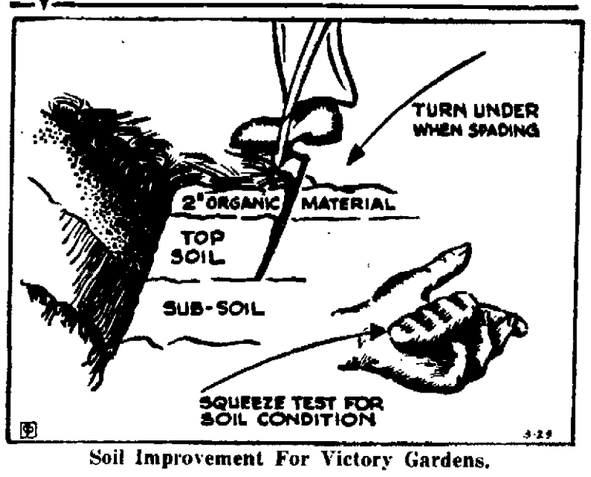
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Soil Improvement For Victory Gardens.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Released By Central Press Assn.)

REINFORCEMENTS for the soil often are vital for success with a Victory garden. Organic materials usually are mustered for this purpose. Organic matter improves the physical condition of all soils with the exception of muck soils. It makes a sandy soil heavier and a clay soil lighter. In fact, organic matter largely determines the ability of any soil to hold moisture.

Formerly barnyard manure was the main source of organic matter used in gardening, but today in many areas it is impossible to obtain such manures. One of the great benefits of manure for gardening purposes is that it provides a medium for the growth of bacteria beneficial to plant growth. In lieu of barnyard manures, the growing and plowing under of cover crops is an inexpensive way to add "green manure" to a garden.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph to add organic matter to Victory garden soil apply one, or better still, two inches of manure, peatmoss, humus, decayed leaves, compost pile material or a mixture of these over the area to be planted. This layer of organic matter should then be turned under and mixed with the soil during spading.

Victory garden soil should be worked early in the spring when it is still moist but not sticky. If the soil is in the right condition spading will readily break up the earth clods. To determine if the soil is in the right condition for working, remove a spadeful of soil, then take a handful from below the surface. Squeeze it into a lump with your hand, as illustrated, and if the lump breaks easily after squeezing the sail is dry enough to work. If, however, the soil squeezes into a putty like lump the garden area needs to dry out some more before turning.

FILE ANSWERS

Butler Defendants in Weekley Suits Deny Charges.

Dr. John A. Reed, Ira George and Norman J. Stukey, all of Butler, filed answers Saturday denying all allegations in damage suits filed against them last June 15 by Willard S. Weekley, former Butler school superintendent.

Alleging that the three made remarks in defamation of his character, Weekley asked $10,000 damages from each of the three in his action which had remained unanswered until Saturday when hearing was held on his motion for docketing the cases for trial. Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch granted defendants leave to file answers immediately, indicating that the cases would be among the first heard by the petit jury in the April term.

Defendants in the actions had been granted 30-day leaves in which to enter answers last July, August and September, having been in default since expiration of the latter leave, the judge said.

HINT AT OUSTER OF RIBBENTROP

Reports From Berlin Tell of Sudden Deaths of Two Nazi Diplomats.

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM — The sudden deaths of two German diplomats tended today to substantiate repeated reports circulating here of an impending shake-up in the Nazi foreign ministry, possibly involving the ouster of Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

Reports have become more persistent lately that Ribbentrop had lost the favor of Adolph Hitler and was either on the way out or would be "kicked upstairs" to a new, but insignificant position.

These reports came from various sources closely connected with Berlin and were given added credence by the deaths—both within a few days—of Hans Von Moltke and Hans Von Schelicha, long-time friends in the German foreign office.

Moltke, German ambassador to Spain, died at Madrid last week while recovering from an operation for appendicitis, and Schelicha, a high official of the Berlin diplomatic staff, was executed for opposition to the Nazi government.

Both had served in the German embassy at Warsaw before the outbreak of war, Moltke as ambassador and Schelicha as first secretary.

Another execution, disclosed over the week-end, that possibly may be linked with the shake-up was that of Ernst Von Harnack, who was governor of a Prussion province until Hitler came to power.

It was believed here that Ribbentrop has become involved in trouble with the Nazi hierarchy or else that Hitler desires to replace him merely for an outward showing of a reorientation of foreign policy.

N THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

ASHINGTON — If I seem to be writing too much about plans for after the war, it is not cause I think the war is almost over. Nothing ight suggests any early end, not even in Europe. We have been in North Africa almost five nths and it may be two or three months more fore we have driven the Germans out. As Secre- y of War Stimson says, we may expect favor- le progress in North Africa but we must pay for it with heavy casualties. Many more heroic Allied soldiers will die in the hard fighting that is still ahead there.

Clapper

Our ideas of the speed of war- fare have been influenced unduly by the early German blitz sweeps, the quick victories in Norway, in Holland, Belgium and France. A better guide would be the long, slow, grim swinging of the tides back and forth in Rus- sia for nearly two years, since Hitler marched on.

In our preparations here at home, we must as- e that the war will go on for some time. It was very well this week by one of the officials of Sun Shipbuilding company. He said we ought top considering the war as an emergency and ead consider it as our way of life. That is what many, Japan, Russia and England have had to We will be more effective if we do the same. That means a vast amount of tightening up. It ns that we can't go on improvising on man- er forever. The Sun shipbuilding yard, which isited, builds three-fourths of all American kers. These people are under pressure to more double last year's production of 40 tankers. have 30,000 people working. They need 10,000 e. They hire three people while losing one for draft.

They have only about a thousand women work- and they should be training toward using 30 cent women—10 times their present employ- ment. That, at least, is what will have to be done if the manpower strain is to be carried over a long period. There is no work more essential than building tankers, in the race to keep the German submarines from choking off fuel to Allied armies across the Atlantic. But men are being taken steadily for the army, and women must be trained to substitute if production is not to suffer. That's the story all over America.

A long war means that we can less afford to tolerate the kind of thing that has been disclosed this week. The production of defective steel, covered up under fake records, is the kind of thing that needs to be cracked down on so hard that it will discourage others from taking any chances of that kind. The fantastic profits of ship oper- ators, charging all that the traffic will bear, are certainly not to be condoned at a time when we are trying to induce the coal miners and the farmers to refrain from charging all the traffic will bear. The cocky attitude of the shipowners down here, who haughtily spurn suggestions that they disgorge some of their fat profits, on the ground that they are within their legal rights, is not going to help in winning the battle against inflation.

The fact that this is apt to be a long war makes it all the more imperative that the battle against inflation be waged relentlessly. The in- creasing shortage of goods increases the pressure for inflation. The longer the war goes on, the more steam is built up behind inflation.

Fortunately the treasury department is going to try to skim off a huge layer of excess purchas- ing power. That's one big purpose that can be served by the new 13-billion-dollar war loan. If this campaign is successful it will draw off some of the inflationary pressure. But the chances would have been much better if the pay-as-you-go tax plan had been put through so that people would know just where they stood in planning their tax payments.

WLB DEVELOPING NEW FORMULA ON WAGE CEILINGS

Secret Parleys Conducted To Find Substitute For Little Steel Plan.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Faced with a growing rebellion by unions, the war labor board is holding secret conferences to change its Little Steel formula to fix definite dollar-and-cents ceilings on wages, it was learned today.

The proposal is being spon- sored by labor members of the board, and its chances for ap- proval are said to be bright. It would ultimately freeze the paycheck of every American worker. However, before the freeze occurred, thousands would get pay boosts, particu- larly in the south.

Under the Little Steel yard- stick, wage increases are held to a maximum of 15 per cent above the cost-of-living in January 1941. The new proposal still would rec- ognize the cost-of-living theory but establish maximum wages by jobs and industrial areas.

For instance, the board, under the new plan, is discussing a 40- cent an hour maximum for un- classified workers in the south. The present average, labor mem- bers of the board are arguing, is 13½ cents an hour.

Under the new system, unions in the south could demand that wages for unclassified workers be brought up to that level, and em- ployers could grant wage in- creases up to the level without consulting the WLB.

Higher dollar-and-cent ceilings would be placed on jobs of other workers, depending on their clas- sification. The maximum for ship- yard workers, as an example, would be greatly above the 40- cent figure being discussed for unclassified workers.

The nation would be split up into areas the south, the gulf, the east, the Great Lakes, the middle west, the southwest and the far west. Maximum wages would be set for jobs in every basic indus- try, such as those in aircraft fac- tories, automobile plants and shipyards.

The maximum would be design- ed to allow wage earners meet the cost-of-living but in the case of highly paid skilled workers their surplus for luxuries may be trimmed off.

FINDS NATION'S HEALTH SLOWLY BREAKING DOWN

OWI Lays 'Deterioration' To Acute Lack of Doctors In Many Communities.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The office of war information today disclosed the probability of a "slow deter- ioration" in the nation's health because of an acute lack of doc- tors in many communities.

"There is not at present a seri- ous breakdown in health," the OWI said, "but unless we initiate some method of appraising the problem and deciding on the best plan to meet it, interference with war production due to widespread sickness can be expected."

Approximately one-third of the doctors in the United States —between 40,000 and 50,000— have joined the armed forces, the OWI said, and as the size of the army and navy increases more will be called.

"The men in uniform have been and will continue to be the best cared for medically in the world," he added.

But the problem of civilian health is increasing and in total war the health and working-pow- er of the civilian is as important as health and striking power of the man in the battle line. To offset lack of medical attention, attempts are being made to ap- portion the available supply of doctors as equitably as possible.

The OWI recently surveyed some 60 communities and 20 states where shortages of doctors have been reported. These con- clusions were reached:

1. So far the health of the na- tion as a whole has not been seri- ously impaired by the doctor shortage. Doctors these days are not only working overtime; they are—most of them — w o r k i n g practically all the time and in to- tal disregard of their own health.

2. The number of communities critically in need of doctors is not great compared with the total number, but those in need are among those most vital to the war effort.

3. In too many cases doctors were recruited for the armed ser- vices without sufficient regard for the welfare of the civilian popula- tion; enough remain in private practice to give adequate civilian care "provided they can be prop- erly distributed numerically and according to special abilities."

DEATH STRIKES RACHMANINOFF

Noted Pianist and Composer Stricken in West; Had Been Ill Two Weeks.

(By International News Service)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.—(INS)—The music world today mourned the loss of one of its most distin- guished figures.

Sergei Rachmaninoff, the noted pianist, composer and conductor, is dead.

Ill for approximately two weeks he passed away yesterday at his Beverly Hills home as a result of pneumonia and complications which developed.

Although of advanced age — 69 years—his death was not expect- ed. His illness had not been re- garded as critical.

His passing brought to a close a brilliant career that had spanned more than half a cen- tury. He attained prominence that remained with him all of his life when, at the age of 13, the great composer Tschaikow- sky, attracted by his work, took him under his wing as his pro- tege.

With him when he died were his wife, Natalie, with whom he be- came a naturalized American last Feb. 1, and a daughter, Mrs. Irena Wolkonsky. Besides these two, he is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Tatiana Conus, who is in France.

Requiem mass in the Los An- geles Russian Orthodox church to- night will be followed by funeral mass at 11 a. m. tomorrow. His body will be placed in a tempor- ary vault until the final place of interment has been determined.

Mansfielders were considerably interested in the story of Walter Simmons featured in a graphic section of yesterday's Chicago Tri- bune since it contained reference to William F. Sawhill, who met death with torpedo squadron No. 8, in the battle of Midway. The article, which was accompanied by a tribute by Captain Edward V. Rickenbacker, to the courage and daring of the men, gave a de- tailed account of bombing activ- ities under the heading "America Salutes Torpedo Squadron Eight."

Woodland school pupils turned paper collectors last week, and, according to reports today they did a good job. Starting a house- to-house campaign, the youngsters gathered old newspapers and mag- azines and took them to the school in wagons, boxes, scooters, bicycles and about every other possible way. When the paper was sold, the P.-T. A. had netted $65. Mrs. J. J. Kindel, Davis road, was chair- man of the campaign.

LYWOOD — Miss Jean Arthur had a bad se of the giggles today. Miss Jean Arthur, er.

Arthur, as you've probably heard, is sup- o be—next to Garbo—our town's most in- le, shyest lady. That's why it's a pleasure ort that, right out in front of everybody, rthur had the giggles.

was doing a scene with John Wayne, her hero in "A Lady Takes a Chance." Mr. Wayne is a six- footer plus, plenty plus in cow- boy's high-heeled boots, and Miss Arthur, who is five feet three, was wearing three-inch heels to come within kissing range. Per- haps this made her giddy. What seemed to bring on the laughing jag was Mr. Wayne, however. Mr. Wayne was wearing an apron and was about to help Miss Arthur do the dishes in the little auto court bungalow (by arrangement with the Hayes office) where cooked his dinner.

Wayne looked very funny in his cowboy apron, and Miss Arthur seemed to think even funnier than that. Right out in front body, through three rehearsals, she had ies.

f this is related merely to prove my long- ief that Miss Jean Arthur is thoroughly Nobody in our town gets more bad "report cards" from people who think they know her, or more good ones from other people who think the same thing.

I don't know her. The story of my life with Jean Arthur can be told briefly: I met her first at an arranged "interview" when she was first in Holly- wood. She was shy, and she acted belligerent to cover up. She was playing leads in westerns then, and didn't like it. Pretty soon after that, she was to go back to New York and the stage and be called back, a success, to Hollywood. She has had more success since then, has married Frank J. Ross (a former real estate man who had a fling at acting and now is her producer) and has taken a place as a top-flight star. Now and again I see her (not in arranged "interviews"), and she is still shy—but makes an effort to be pleasant instead of belligerent.

People who really know her say that her shy- ness verges on physical illness, that she sincerely can't understand why other people should be inter- ested in her as a person. There's a stock answer for that: Why is she a picture star if she wants a private life? But stock answers don't cover people, or shyness.

She brings to her pictures sincerity, hard work, and personal charm, and a sense of timing which makes her a delight as a romantic comedienne— to say nothing of her funny, Charlie McCarthy voice which is her distinctive asset.

Westbrook Pegler is on vacation. His column will reappear late in April.

June. The heavy enemy escort for the two cargo vessels also indicated an urgent need for getting supplies to Kiska.

Announcement of the long-range duel came shortly after another communique revealed six new American aerial thrusts against Japanese positions in Kiska and the Solomons and retaliatory enemy raids on Canton island, southwest of Hawaii, and against Guadalcanal.

The American aerial raiders blew up ammunitions dumps, hit camp areas, started fires and leveled buildings.

The Japanese raids were on a smaller scale. Two planes inflicted "slight damage" to American positions on Canton island. It was the first enemy raid there.

The enemy raid on Guadalcanal was made by seven planes. In five attempts to bomb Guadalcanal, they succeeded in dropping bombs during only two runs. One American was killed and 13 others were injured. Only "slight material damage" was caused.

American bombers attacked Nauru island twice last Friday. It is an enemy bastion which guards Japan's powerful naval base at Truck island. Catalina flying boats bombed and set several fires on the island before a force of four-engined army Liberators struck.

Americans carried out four raids against enemy bases in the central Solomons. Two of them were against Munda which was raided for the 100th time last Saturday (island time).

The same day that American and Japanese naval forces were swapping long-range punches west of Attu, American bombers were raiding Kiska for the 20th time. Hits were scored on a hangar and in the enemy's camp area.

It was not announced on what grounds Mack based his appeal, but since he is married and the father of a 17-months-old daughter dependency was believed to be the reason.

RAF UNLEASHES FURY ON GERMAN SUBMARINE BASE

Gives Nazaire Dose of Same Punishment It Visited on Berlin Saturday Night.

tons of bombs hurled down on Berlin Saturday night was almost double the heaviest total of explosives and incendiaries the German air force dropped on London in its heaviest attack.

(The German high command communique broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press said Allied air attacks against occupied western territory caused "heavy losses" among the population.

(The communique claimed destruction of 18 planes there and over the Norwegian coast, an area that the Allies did not mention.)

Reuters heard a broadcast by the German-controlled radio reporting "considerable" damage to private homes in yesterday's raid by United States planes on Rouen. This report said 80 bodies had been recovered.

Clearing weather favored the British flyers as they continued the clock-around joint British and American air blows at the continent.

A force of several hundred Lancasters, Halifaxes and Stirlings gave the German capital its sixth raid this year and the 59th of the war Saturday night, showering down 900 tons of bombs, including many two and four-ton block busters, and left fires visible 120 miles away, returning pilots reported.

(Dispatches from Berlin to the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet said the Allied raid, carried out in the face of furious anti-aircraft fire, was concentrated principally on the industrial outskirts of the city, and left central Berlin virtually undamaged.)

The raid cost the RAF nine of its big bombers. A bomber and four fighters were missing following the daylight stroke at Rouen. German fighters pursued the returning Americans to within sight of the English coast, but several planes were shot down.

Main railway junctions, serving northern France and Germany, were successfully attacked in the Rouen foray.

Major Sydney S Bartlett, U. S. force observer who acted as bombardier in one of the British planes attacking Berlin, described the city as "one hell's brew of solid flame."

German shipyards at the Netherlands North sea port of Rotterdam and industrial targets at Liege, Belgium, also came in for week-end punishment.

LONDON — (AP) — The German radio today quoted Fernand de Brinon, representative of Pierre Laval's Vichy government in Paris, as saying 4,000 persons had been killed and 7,000 injured in British and American air raids on France during the past 18 month.

Urbana Oil Dealers Agree To Furnish Gas For Tractors.

URBANA —(INS)— With spring plowing time at hand and many Champaign county farmers still without gasoline rations for tractors, a majority of Urbana oil dealers agreed today to let them have fuel without definite assurance that the ration coupons would be forthcoming by April 20, the date they are due.

Failure of farmers to receive tractor gas allotments was blamed on a jam said to exist in the county ration board.

plies to honor new red ration coupons.

In Dayton, hard pressed for meat during the last two weeks, consumers found little use for their new ration coupons. Meat dealers there reported that virtually all of the 200,000 pounds of meat specially allotted the city was sold Saturday and there will be little meat available until the first of April when new quotas are released.

No trace could be found today of the 1,250,000 pounds of beef scheduled to be rushed to New York City to alleviate the city's meat shortage. It is hoped, in this city virtually meatless, that the shipment will arrive soon.

The average American, who has been one of the world's biggest per capita consumers of meat, began tightening his belt today in preparation for the buying of meat by point rationing. The sixteen points allowed him this week will buy two pounds of steak—if it is available. But most people want to use some of those points to buy other cuts of meat and also butter, lard, cheese, vegetable shortening, canned fish and salad oils.

Coupled with the new agriculture department controls [illegible] slaughtering of livestock, and the recent intensive OPA [illegible] drive against black markets, rationing is expected, however, to restore normal distribution of meat throughout the country.

Screamin' For ICE CREAM?

REMEMBER that song the kids used to sing?—"I scream, you scream, we all scream for ice cream." . . . Well, it's no joke to your Borden Ice Cream dealer nowadays. Maybe his customers aren't exactly screaming, but there are so many of them who want so much ice cream! If he had it, he could sell lots more than he did last year, and that would make him happy because he knows it would make you happy. BUT . . . he hasn't got it—and for a very good reason. That's because Uncle Sam has asked ice cream makers to cut production by more than one-third this year, saving milk and cream for our fighters to help them win the war. And if, by getting along with a little less ice cream, we can make the Axis yell "Uncle" a little bit sooner—well, who's screamin'?

Mothers as Industrial Workers

MORE AND MORE opposition is developing to the employment of mothers of young children in defense plants. The chief of the bureau of attendance of a large school system told his school board the other day that if he had his way he would certainly declare homemaking an essential industry. He "would not permit mothers with children under 16 to work unless there were others in the household capable of caring for the children. Wartime experience of England with juvenile delinquency shows it doesn't pay to break down any of these safeguards."

He would not relax laws dealing with child labor, either. He thinks young people must be protected against their own desire to earn money too early, and against the desire of some parents to have their children earn too soon.

Part of the solution seems to lie with women in their forties or fifties, whose own families are grown and who still have plenty of energy to work in plants. They have stamina, too, and ability, without the flightiness of some young unmarried girls, or the divided attention of mothers of young children. More and more of these middle-aged women are doing their bit in the factories, stores and other places where shortage of help has become a problem.

Kane Bill Deserved Better Fate

RESORT to the practice of "killing" an objectionable bill in committee is still highly favored by lobbyists for special interests, in order to prevent open discussion of the proposal by the legislature.

Most recent example of such procedure in the Ohio legislature is action by the state senate utilities committee to arbitrarily kill a bill to which the powerful utilities lobby interposed objection.

This bill, introduced by Senator Kane, of Cincinnati, was designed to authorize the state public utilities commission to use actual investment, or "historical cost" method of computing property values in rate-making cases.

Justification for basing rates on "actual investment," rather than fictitious valuations, has long been recognized as in the public interest, and Ohio's standard of fixing utility rates has been in need of amendment for many years. A change such as proposed in Senator Kane's bill would have ended the long delays in rate litigation before the public utilities commission and enabled cities to present their claims for lower rates without incurring almost prohibitive expense in individual cases.

Under the present system of determining value on a reproduction cost basis, valuations change constantly, at least in theory, and are not the same in any two cases. Thus big corporations are able to force even the smallest cities to meet costly engineering fees in determining valuation in a particular case.

Even in the midst of war interest, this action by the senate utilities committee, clearly in response to utilities pressure, has stirred a wave of adverse criticism over the state.

Week To Bring Entertainment

COMING along this week, as at least a brief break in thoughts of war, taxes, rationing, and the like, three evenings of pleasant entertainment are in store for Mansfielders.

First—tomorrow night at John Simpson auditorium—the popular Community Players will give their one show of the present season, with "Arsenic and Old Lace," a sure-fire comedy, as the offering.

Cut down from their customary three-play schedule of former years because of war conditions, the Community Players are to be commended for carrying along their organization activities to this extent under existing difficulties and liberal patronage should express appreciation.

Wednesday and Thursday evenings will bring to the stage of Senior high school auditorium the student production of Thornton Wilder's widely commended play, "Our Town," for which an exceptionally large and competent cast has been chosen.

The Wednesday night performance is intended primarily for young people of school age, with Thursday night planned for adult attendance. Not only interest in Mansfield's schools but also assurance of an evening of delightful entertainment justifies anticipation of capacity audiences at both performances.

'What Might Have Been' Thoughts

WHEN it's a 50,000 to 1 chance at the best, how disturbing must be the feeling of vain regret associated with the circumstances of being unprotected by attendance, registration or "insurance," when one's name is called as a bank night winner!

Those who are listed among bank night registrants and who always safeguard the remote possibility of winning, by regular attendance on those nights, by registering attendance under the rules, or by patronizing one of the numerous "insurance" rackets being operated around town, need have no such bitter memories as will cause life-long regret over not being there to claim the award.

And there's also the distressing thought of what could have been done with all that money—how the family wardrobe could have been replenished, what a nice trip could have been taken, a good-sized payment made on the home . . . on and on, indefinitely.

Of course, there's only one chance in 50,000, or more, but it must be a rather dreadful thing to be "the bank night winner who wasn't there."

"What is the smallest space in which chickens can be kept," was asked—and the answers editor of London Punch replied, "Eggs."

Surprising how many people bought more meat than they needed last week-end—to keep it from getting into the hands of hoarders.

"Voluntary rationing" turned out to be a beautiful theory, or, as Herbert Hoover said of prohibition, "a noble experiment."

The senior partner shows signs of intending to withdraw from the old firm of Pork & Beans.

ONLY A FEW OF THEM LEFT

How Army Gets the Mail Through

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — For the first time the army has set up a school for postmen.

Officially, it's the Army Postoffice School at Pennsylvania State Teachers College, West Chester, Pa. Every two weeks 125 men will be graduated from the six-weeks course of instruction in delivering army mail. But there's more to it than that. It's really a post graduate school, because it's open only to former postoffice employes now in the army.

The army's mail history is a long one. When George Washington's ragged little Continental army was playing hare and hounds with the British, the importance of mail to the troops was recognized. The general himself pleaded with the post to do better in getting letters from home to the men on the firing line.

By the time World War I came around, the morale value of a message from mama or the girl friend was an established fact and the APO went to town. Compared to mail delivery problems of World War II, however, those of the first World War were simple.

APO offices now circle the globe. When our troops landed in North Africa, "shooting postmen" were among the first to get their feet wet. Mobile postoffices now move so close to the front lines that they frequently are under fire. In New Guinea, where almost every foot had to be hacked out of mountain jungles, they were right behind the mobile mess trucks. There are APOs in India, Iceland, Panama, Alaska, Ireland, Greenland and New Zealand—to mention only a few spots.

But that's not half the story. Not long ago, a big ferry command plane went down in the North Atlantic. It carried several thousand letters of army mail. The plane sank in comparatively shallow water. Divers went down and brought up the mail sacks. It took weeks of work at the New York APO to decipher some of those water-smeared addresses, but when it was all over, only a score or so of the letters had to be sent to the dead letter office.

When the Atlantic Clipper took its tragic plunge near Lisbon recently, it was carrying 176,000 V-mail letters. According to Col. W. A. Kenyon, deputy director of the Army Postal Service, within 46 hours the originals of those letters still held in New York had been re-run on V-mail film and were on their way to their destinations.

Originals of V-mail letters are never destroyed until word has been received they have reached their destination. Thus, for the first time there's a method of assuring delivery, despite sinkings, bombings, fire and high water.

EVERY convoy that goes out of the U. S. carries tons of mail. If there is anything to the U-boat menace at all, some tons of that mail must be at the bottom of the seven seas.

Still millions of those letters are going through under conditions never imagined a few years ago. From now on, a large proportion of the mailmen who deliver them will be graduates of the West Chester school and possibly other schools to be opened. They'll be fighting men as well, for there will be none who gets in there who hasn't had his basic training — and knows how to handle his rifle as well as he does his scales and cancellation machine.

Timely Editorial

Asleep In Columbus.

The department of liquor control doesn't need to wait for the legislature to authorize rationing before starting to do a little wartime belt-tightening.

More stores are in operation than is necessary, in view of the curtailed supplies. After their busy hour or two in which they sell their quota for the day, clerks and cashiers are twiddling their thumbs or playing tit tat-toe.

Maybe their work will be stretched out over more hours if and when the rationing system gets started, but it seems pretty plain that, whatever happens, Ohio's liquor can be dispensed through fewer stores and with less help.

At a time like this, when manpower is so short, it is a crime that the state should waste it.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Listen World! By ELSIE ROBINSON

Why's a Belittler?

DISHEARTENED" wants me to write a column about "Belittlers." You know the breed—those human blights who are always taking the joy out of someone's life by their malicious sneers and snorts.

"Disheartened" has one such as a neighbor. She could be so happy otherwise for she has a devoted husband, three adorable tykes, a charming home. But said belittling neighbor never allows her a moment's peace; however trivial the occasion, she's always at hand with a caustic comment.

"How do people get that way?" means "Disheartened." "Don't they realize the misery they cause, particularly to sensitive people like myself? And isn't there any way to control them?

Yes, there is, sister. And I can give it to you in exactly four words . . . LEARN TO CONTROL YOURSELF.

WHY'S A BELITTLER?
BECAUSE WE LET HIM!
NO ONE CAN BELITTLE US UNLESS WE PERMIT IT.
THE VICIOUS POWER OF A BELITTLER DOESN'T LIE WITHIN HIMSELF BUT IN OUR OWN REACTION TO HIM.

There's nothing unique about Belittlers. The woods are full of festering folk who are always seeking compensation for their own fret and fury. Something has hurt them. They feel humiliated and frustrated. They long for the power and attention they've missed and, in their own warped way, they try to enlarge their own lives by cheapening the other fellow's. Then you help them along by taking their jibes personally.

"But I'm so sensitive I can't help taking things personally," cries Disheartened.

Then you'd better learn and pronto. This sad world is too full of other people and their problems for any of us to hog the spotlight. Nine-tenths of what we call sensitiveness is simply a handover from babyhood . . a form of infantilism. You've no more right to indulge in it than you have to go 'round sucking your thumb.

Actually, the Belittler and the Belittled are both actuated by the same motive. They both want to be Exhibit A. They both crave attention and magnify trifles to gain their ends.

Your "Belittler," Disheartened, gains comfort for her own loneliness by snickering at your spring hat, criticising your children, pretending to be sorry for your husband. You could and should take it all in your stride, as you'd take the mud on you heel. But instead of ignoring her or bawling her out, you make a major tragedy of it and have your family and friends taking sides.

The simple truth is—you and the woman who belittles you are equally at fault. You are both shrinking life to the narrow dimensions of your own peeves and pouts. And you're both doing it to gain attention . . . Martyrs and meanies are often twin sprouts from the same root.

There's nothing wrong in desiring healthy power and attention. But there's plenty wrong in making issues of them and trying to gain them by cry-baby methods. The world is locked in a death struggle. Hundreds are being racked by fear and loss, agony and humiliation. Those people need you. You could be a great and healing force among them, if you'd forget yourself. Instead, you spend your time throwing spit balls at the other fellow and blubbering over the ones he throws at you.

QUIT IT LADY! TAKE OUT YOUR HANKY . . . GIVE A GOOD, LONG BLO-OO-W . . . THEN GET SO BUSY THAT YOU HAVE NO TIME TO REALIZE YOU'VE BEEN BELITTLED . . . AND DON'T GIVE A HOOT IF YOU HAVE.

Relocation Program for Doctors Opposed By Medical Association

WASHINGTON—The all-important question of the nation's health plus the current shortage of doctors has been the object of some back stage footballing. Meanwhile the Public Health Service warns that we may be in for disease epidemics worse than those of the last war. Two diseases, tuberculosis and influenza, already are on the upswing in certain areas.

To remedy this the Public Health Service is working on a plan for the re-location of doctors creating a medical pool, from which doctors would be "drafted" and sent to parts of the country where they are most needed.

However, the American Medical association, which operates a powerful lobby in Washington, frowns on this plan as a step toward "socialized medicine." They argue that the relocation program would break down state licensing laws. (Their critics claim that actually AMA's state and local units don't want outsiders coming in and competing with local doctors.)

To get to the bottom of all this Senator Pepper of Florida proposes a thorough investigation by the senate education and labor committee. Meanwhile the Office of War Information has made a preliminary probe of its own. This together with soundings already made by Senator Pepper discloses the following vital facts about the nation's health:

1. There will be an average of only one doctor to every 1,500 civilians by the end of 1943.

2. Despite the sharp birth rate increase the army and navy are commissioning a large number of obstetricians and pediatricians.

3. The quota of doctors for the armed services has been oversubscribed by as much as 40 per cent in some parts of the country.

4. The medical shortage is not only acute in rural areas, but also in industrial areas where there has been a heavy influx of labor.

5. One reason for desperate doctor shortage in certain sections is the fact that the Manpower Commission's medical procurement and assignment branch has been resisting the relocation of doctors, at the behest of state and local medical societies.

Note: The Manpower Commission's medical branch is influenced by two important members of the American Medical association, Dr. Frank Leahy former president of the AMA, now chairman of the Manpower Medical division, and Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the AMA Journal.

Island Tempest.

CURRENT hullabaloo over Puerto Rico and the Tugwell administration there is more important than a tempest in an island teapot. Trouble in Puerto Rico has its repercussions on the Good Neighbor policy in Latin America. Also it stymies senatorial rock-throwing at India.

Inside fact is that the senate committee which investigated Puerto Rico found Governor Rex Tugwell doing a better job than the papers indicated. Particularly significant was the fact that he got more kind words from Republican senators than Democrats.

Conservative Senator Taft of Ohio championed Tugwell's idea of breaking up at least one of the big sugar centrales in order to take land away from big owners, divide it among little farmers. Taft thought this might help solve Puerto Rico's food problem, but that Tugwell should try it out on one centrale before proceeding with others.

Senator Brewster of Maine, Republican, also was sympathetic with Tugwell's almost impossible problems. He and Taft noted several far-sighted steps. For instance, Tugwell saw ahead to establish a bottle industry on the island, so rum distillers now have their own bottles. Otherwise they would have folded, because ships now have no room to carry empty bottles.

However, Tugwell, idealistic, honest, persevering, has three enemies. One is himself, and his inability to observe political niceties. Never a politician, Tugwell hates to talk, think or act politically. Second enemy is Bolivar Pagan, Puerto Rican commissioner in Washington, who sits in congress and knifes Tugwell at every turn.

Third enemy, though she doesn't mean to be, is his wife. Formerly his secretary, Mrs. Tugwell appears to run the governor as she once did his office as undersecretary of agriculture. She is reputed to tell local politicians who should be appointed, to be the petticoat ruler of Puerto Rico.

Unimportant, but significant was Mrs. Tugwell's remark when the senate investigating committee was entertained at dinner at the governor's mansion. A servant brought in a roast of beef, placed it before the governor.

"Bring that down here," commanded Mrs. Tugwell, "I'll carve the roast."

Merry-Go-Round.

HARRY CAREY, who starred as the very human, hard-hitting sergeant in Warner Brothers "Air Force," studied law at New York university in the same class with Judge Ferd Pecora. For years he has been one of Hollywood's best loved cowboy actors, runs his own ranch outside Hollywood, will not slaughter his old cows for beef. They are buried on his ranch. . . . Lt. Col. Harold Hinton, ex-New York Times correspondent, was talking with his old friend Cordell Hull, whose biography he wrote. Hinton mentioned the name of Columnist Walter Lippmann. Hull froze. Not till later did Hinton discover that Lippmann had been highly critical of Hull's North African policy. . . . 36-year-old Dr. Patterson French, once a $3,000 professor of Public Administration at Yale, now gets $8,000 as OPA rationer of shoes. . . . French's predecessor for shoe rationing was 31-year-old Professor Richard G. Getell, also a $3,000 professor at Yale, who got $8,000 from OPA. . . . "One trouble with Washington," says Bernie Baruch, "is that they wait till the patient needs the oxygen tent before they bring in the doctor."

How Ernie Gets His Stuff Through, With Credit Where Credit Is Due.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN ALGERIA—Every army headquarters anywhere in the world has what is called a "Message Center." It is run by the signal corps, and through it goes all the vast flow of communications necessary to keep an army running.

Where I am, the Message Center handles my columns after they leave the censor. Some of these columns go home by wireless, some go part way by air and the rest by wireless, some go all the way home by air.

I have to trust blindly to the boys in the Message Center to get my columns headed in the right direction and by the right means, and especially trust them to get them started somewhere immediately, and not let them lie around for days under a stack of papers.

I understand there were several lapses in this column at home a while back, due to its getting bottle-necked somewhere along the route. But I'm sure the delay hasn't been here at the fountainhead of literature. For the boys at the Message Center and I have a system, to wit:

I'll put their names in the paper if they treat me nice and handle my copy well; they'll treat me nice and handle my copy well if I'll put their names in the paper. It sounds like collusion, and undoubtedly is.

At any rate the boys have done their part, so now I'll pay off. If any of their parents should read this, you may know that your boys are living under cover, eating well, are in no personal danger, and that they are gay and have fun at their work. Here they are:

Lieut. Gordon Carlisle, Exeter, N. H. He was still in college when he joined the army. They call him the boy from "Cow College," the nickname for the U. of N. H. Coming from up north he's a fresh-air fiend, and keeps the boys frozen stiff by having the windows open all the time.

Pvt. Frank T. Borczon, Erie, Pa. Frank says the worst part about being in Africa is that he can't find a bowling alley. He was a champion back home.

Pvt. Julius Novak, Brooklyn, N. Y. He is so quiet the boys can't tell me a thing about him to put in the paper.

Pfc. George Doomchin, The Bronx. He says the great mystery of this war is how The Saturday Evening Post gets along without him. He used to sell it at home.

Pvt. Gerald Kelly, Elkins, W. Va. He's a cheerful, good-looking young fellow who used to be an athletic director for the Y. M. C. A.

Corpl. A. C. Moore, of Mobile, Ala. His mother always called him "A. C.," which has been slurred into "Ace" in the army. In the slack hours late at night the boys pass the time by drawing up court-martial charges against "Ace." He is a printer by trade. His wife is waiting for him out in Lufkin, Tex.

Pvt. William L. Harrington, Pittsburgh, who is jovially known in these parts as "Fill-'er-Up Phil." Seems as though his glass is always getting empty.

Pvt. Jacob L. Seiler, of Covington, La. "Jake the Fake" the boys call him. Jake says to put down that he was a "mixologist" before the war. In other words, a bartender. I assume that he carries on in the army by getting the messages all mixed up.

Pvt. George Murphy, Lowell, Mass., who spent years as a textile mill's traveling salesman, and can't seem to stop traveling.

Sergt. John J. Taylor, of Temple, Tex. He's a big husky who was a football and baseball letterman at the University of Alabama.

Corpl. Jack Price, of Bellefontaine, O. He says he grew up in a poolroom. His father owned one. Jack speaks only about twice a day, and then it's always something that rolls the other boys in the aisles. That old dry wit, you know.

Pvt. Ed Sailor, Philadelphia. He said to put down that he is a former postal clerk and well-known Strawberry Mansion pinball player. I asked him what Strawberry Mansion was. He said anybody in Philadelphia would know.

Pfc. Thomas C. Buckley, of Newhebron, Miss. They call him "the Mississippi Mud Hen." He used to jerk sodas way down South. He celebrated Christmas and his first wedding anniversary the same day.

Corpl. Russell W. Harrell, Fairfield, Ia. He's been everything—farmer, building construction, hardware salesman—so nothing surprises him anymore.

Pvt. Primo de Carlo, Steubenville, O. The boys give him more Italian nicknames than Musso himself, the main one being Signor Vaselino. The Signor just grins. Primo was once an opera singer. He went to school for three years in Milan. And then wound up selling beer in Steubenville. He wonders if he won't eventually get back to Milan after all.

Objects To Waste.

Editor News-Journal:

Would you pay sixty dollars for a two-dollar item in a store, or pay one hundred dollars for twenty-five dollars of service?

You and I and the rest of the people in this country are doing that and will keep on doing it just as long as we let it go. It is you and I and the rest of us who are paying the bills for carrying on this war and we will be paying for a long time yet. Why then should we pay such large sums for what is in reality sabotage?

At the Ravenna (Ohio) arsenal a door was to be hung. A foreman told my cousin "You and I could have hung that door in one hour." It took a number of men one whole day to hang it at a labor cost of near sixty dollars instead of two dollars. A waste of 96% of our money, so far as war work was concerned.

A government engineer told me of a visit to an eastern plant. He said the men were only 25% efficient. A waste of 75% of our money. How many lives of the men in service have been lost due to inefficiency? How many will lose their lives because supplies do not reach them?

Another government inspector told me that such things are common and even greater waste of money occurred. Just as long as we put up with such waste it will continue. It is sabotage of a subtle nature. Most men do not realize it and it should be brought to their attention and stopped. Should not the public be informed of this? Public opinion will stop it.

Alliteration.

"What," inquires a reader, "is the story of alliteration?"

We never heard the story.

We know what alliteration is—straight Latin connoting emphasis on letters.

It is the repetition, that is, of the same letter, at the beginning of two or three words which immediately, or almost so, succeed each other.

Still no story, except perhaps the story that is in the news for every one to read as they run—how the Axis armies were stampeded at Stalingrad, lambasted at Leningrad, murdered at Moscow, tripped at Tripoli and tituated into Tunisia, whence further alliterative retreat is merely a matter of moons.
